

OXPIP face-to-face therapy guidance and protocol during COVID-19

When attending OXPIP face-to-face sessions during the COVID-19 pandemic, the following steps will be taken to ensure your safety and the safety of the OXPIP Team:

- You will be seen in the largest meeting room available and it will be set up in order to maintain social distance
- The windows of the meeting room will remain open
- Where possible, you are asked to bring your own toys for your baby to play with, otherwise the toys provided will be disinfected after use
- You and your therapist will be required to wear a face covering for the duration of the session. Should you need to remove your mask to communicate with your baby then this is permitted, in agreement with your therapist.
- You will be greeted by your therapist who will open and close the doors and give you antibacterial handwash on arrival and exit
- Once the session is over the room will be cleaned and all surfaces wiped down
- There will be a bigger gap between sessions on the same day to accommodate this.
